

LISTOS

Leadership in Science Training and Outdoor Stewardship

A passion for the outdoors often begins with hunting, fishing, camping, or hiking. LISTOS expands that passion into science, leadership, and stewardship - fostering healthy lands, strong communities, and a sustainable future.

Why You Should Join:

- Hands on Science: Explore New Mexico's forests, rivers, mountains, and wildlife through real field work
- Paid Internships & Research: Earn while you learn in positions that build your future.
- Mentorship and Support: Work alongside scientists, land managers, and community leaders
- Pathways to College & Careers: Build skills for success in Forestry, Wildlife Biology, Geology, and more!

LISTOS covers costs through stipends and paid internships so you can focus on learning!

Contact us!

Dillon Alexander – NRM Program Director
alexanderdillon@unm.edu

Scan to learn more & apply today!

Do what you love.....Love what you do!