For direct access to LIBROS, go to: http://libros.unm.edu

You have now reached the LIBROS Catalog!

At this point you may choose to conduct a search from the menu (i.e., by keyword, title, author, etc.). Once initiated, your search results will appear on the screen as a numbered list. The titles will appear highlighted or bold. You may click on that title to “open” it. At the top and bottom of your search results are “buttons” that will offer directions on how to further proceed (i.e., “new search”, “save record”, “another search”, etc.). The "Return to List" button will take you back to your list of results.

If in doubt, read and follow the instructions on the screen.

An alternative route to LIBROS (and other library resources) is through the UNM-Taos web page (http://taos.unm.edu).

1. Under Quick Links click on Library.

2. Once you are on the Library web page, under “Information Sources” click on LIBROS online catalog.

For detailed instructions on how to use LIBROS, click on “Help” on the LIBROS banner at the top-right of the screen.

What is LIBROS?
LIBROS is an online library catalog. The acronym LIBROS is short for LIBRary Online System.
LIBROS contains records for items that are available through LIBROS Consortium Member Libraries. Currently, there are over 30 different libraries and/or locations within the LIBROS system giving patrons access to 100s of 1000s of records. These records describe the titles for a variety of media types...primarily books, but also including:

- audio visual material (CDs, videos, etc.)
- government documents
- magazine, journal and newspaper titles (but not specific article titles).
- maps
- microfiche
- microfilm
- web page documents or files

Note: Generally speaking, LIBROS does not provide online access to the contents of items.
Ask for assistance or see separate instruction sheet for renewing your items in LIBROS.
